Information for YOU!

With the growing number of racial aliens coming into our nation, everyday we are reminded of the changing of America. It seems we are constantly facing a growing language barrier as we attempt to communicate with someone who can't speak English. Nonwhite Hispanics, Indians, Asians, and Africans are flooding into our communities, schools and places of business. Employers often face difficulty speaking with employees because of the language barrier. Many schools face a further dilemma as they attempt to teach students who speak a variety of languages. Teachers become frustrated attempting to communicate with brown faces who have no incentive to speak English. A growing number of documents appear in English, Spanish, and Chinese. Advertisers include different languages on their product labels and in commercials.

As a result we see a variety of responses. Some people think its wonderful-cultural diversity. Others are upset, but it is not deep rooted and they soon forget. Then there are those who become angry yet don't know how to respond while others are angry and demand that America pass some kind of "English only" law.

Most liberals are opposed to the "English Only" laws, claiming that we need to accept people as they are and not attempt to impose ourselves on them. Meanwhile most conservatives and working class Americans say, if they want to come to America they should at least learn to speak English. As a result we find petitions be signed demanding English only. Many white Christian Americans support "English only" laws -demanding that schools teach only in English, that there be no sharing of space for English and other languages on government documents.

But is "English Only" Good for America and Your Children?

"English Only" laws may seem like the correct path to take for Conservatives, but as racially aware white Christians we must understand that "English Only laws will not magically transform the racial alien into an American.

The reactionary "right wing" thinks that the solution to the growth of racial aliens within the borders of America is to force our language upon them. This will make life easier for us. It will make it easier to communicate on the job, in the marketplace or within our communities. Everybody will speak English and life will be grand. No more confusion in check out lines and those pesky foreigners will finally stop speaking "gibberish" some think to them selves.

It is bad enough that our leaders have betrayed us. The flood coming across our borders makes Niagara Fall look like a trickle. We are a nation that has withstood all sorts of hardships, challenges and calamities. Our nation guarded its racial legacy very carefully for generations, however, beginning in the 1960's the seeds of destruction which were planted in our body politic in 1890-1920 began to mature. The fruit of these "seeds" could be seen in the hippie movement, free love, rejection of prayer in schools, abortion, homosexuality, the civil rights movement, and America's open arms to racial aliens.

I don't believe we should allow ourselves to be classified with the conservative element in politics because conservatives seek merely to preserve the status quo and base their political philosophy upon economics, whereas we base our political philosophy upon the Biblical principle of race. The reason these non-white immigrants can never be a part of our racial nation isn't because they speak a different language, but because they are a different people! Even if the Asian, African, Indian or other non-white can speak English, does that make him so? "English Only" laws will only help to blur our differences and make it easier for them to socialize and mix with our people. This will lead to interracial dating and marriage. This is not a matter of opinion, but a fact that, for example, the histories of Egypt and India will attest. Why would we want to support any law that would make assimilation of non-whites into our culture easier? Yes, from an economic standpoint, "English Only" laws may be helpful, however, from a cultural and racial perspective, "English Only" will only quicken the destruction of our nation. Do not support "English Only" laws!
